HARD TO GET TOPTON CROWD

But Autumn Leaf Excursion will again be Brought in Eight Special Trains. Think Gettysburg should Show Appreciation.

Although eight sections have been arranged for to bring several thousand people to Gettysburg on the occasion of the annual autumn leaf excursion of the Lutheran Orphans' Home at Tipton, Saturday, October 16, it is stated by the authorities at the institution that it is becoming more difficult each year to run this outing successfully and that the trouble now is more apparent than ever before.

This will be the nineteenth consecutive time that the excursion has been run as a benefit affair for the Home. Rev. J. O. Henry, superintendent, says that he has had unusual difficulties in getting his committees working in the various towns which contribute the crowds, but he hopes to have as many as usual and has booked eight sections from the regular places. Last year the same number of trains were booked, but an extra section was added on the day of the event. A total of 4627 were brought.

On account of the difficulty experienced and the diminishing numbers, a call has been sent here for local people to make some contribution. For eighteen years the town has been reaping hundreds of dollars from the "Toptonites" and scarcely anything in return has been given.

Last year the Cyclorama directors took in about $200 on that day and turned over $40, or twenty per cent of their receipts, to the Home management. The Jennie Wade House made a contribution of $10. This year the Cyclorama will again contribute twenty per cent of their receipts on that day and, in order to swell the amount, the directors ask all the hackmen who take excursionists over the field to stop at the big battle picture building.

It is believed that sufficient receipts may be secured in this way to warrant a contribution of about $100 to the Home, a gift that would be greatly appreciated. The management of the Jennie Wade House has agreed to make a contribution, and the hackmen will likely stop there also. Other business places in town which get some revenue from the visit of the Tipton crowd, would confer a great favor by making donations also.

The Home is sheltering a number of children and relies on the annual outing to Gettysburg to furnish a substantial revenue. As this diminishes the deficit must be made up from some other source, and they feel that, as the town has benefited from this source for so many years, the business houses might now make a contribution.

PECULIAR AFFLICTION

Edward Mertz, of New Oxford, Loses Use of His Limbs.

Edward Mertz, living close to Seven Hundred school house, attempted to get up from a chair in which he was sitting one day this week, and was astounded to find that he was not able to use his legs. Just the day before Mr. Mertz was out assisting to pick apples and seemed in the best of health.

He was taken to his bed by six men, as he weighs over three hundred pounds, and is over eighty years old. While he was unable to use his legs his condition otherwise is good and the case is puzzling. He is under the care of a New Oxford physician.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Camp Fire Girls Have their Own Individual Ceremony.

The Monocisee Camp Fire Girls of the Presbyterian church, held a short memorial service for Mr. Keller, Friday evening in appreciation of the work he had done for them in the past year.

The candle of love, representing comradeship, was lighted by the guardian, after which each girl told in what way Mr. Keller had helped her most. This was followed by some appropriate remarks by Rev. Mr. Taylor. The meeting was closed by prayer.

FOR A COUNTY DEBATING TEAM

New Idea Gets Start and Adams County Boys and Girls will have Chance to Show their Skill at Argument. Plan Big League.

For the purpose of getting all the details necessary for the organization of Adams County into districts for the selection of a county debating team, Prof. H. Milton Roth will on next Friday attend a meeting of city and county school superintendents at Harrisburg.

The plan as it has taken shape thus far would begin with preliminary debating contests in rural and city schools on a common topic and within a time limit; next, the winners of each district or city would assemble on a common date at the county seat to determine the winning county team; next, the county teams would go to the district city at the expense of the Board of Trade of that city to determine the winning district teams; finally, the four district teams would go to State College at the expense of the College, to determine the champion debating team of Central Pennsylvania.

The call for the meeting has been issued by President Sparks of State College and will be held under the auspices of the joint Chambers of Commerce of Altoona, Harrisburg, Huntingdon, and Williamsport. The counties are to be divided into four districts centering about these cities, and the superintendents invited to attend are from all of the counties embraced in that territory.

For a number of years debating has been followed in some of the towns and townships of Adams County but it is believed that there will be a more widespread interest if there is some definite object toward which the pupils may work. A position on the county debating team would be a high honor for some boy or girl to attain, and the privilege of meeting those from other counties would be that much more of an honor.

The counties included in the plan are Adams, Bedford, Blair, Clearfield, Center, Clinton, Cameron, Tioga, Bradford, Lycoming, Sullivan, Northumberland, Union, Snyder, Huntingdon, Millin, Perry, Juniata, Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster, York, and Cumberland; and the Arts Extension Division of the Pennsylvania State College.

GET 1000 BIG CARS

Increasing Coal Tonnage Makes Steel Hoppers Necessary.

The Western Maryland Railway Company has received bids for 1,000 steel hopper cars, and it is expected that the contract will be awarded early next week. The additional cars are made necessary by the rapidly increasing coal tonnage which the company is now moving. Specifications call for a 70-ton car, which is one of the largest in use on any of the railroads in the East. The cars will be 37 feet long.

The Western Maryland has placed a contract for 2,000 tons of steel rails for October delivery. The order was divided between the Carnegie and the Bethlehem Steel Companies.

There has been some shortage of coal car equipment in this section in the recent past and the Western Maryland and the Baltimore and Ohio are both seeking to avoid any serious consequences from such a condition.

BIBLE SAVED HIS LIFE HERE

One of Pickett's Men Dies after Carrying Gettysburg Scars for over Half a Century. Bullet Stopped over his Heart.

James M. Kirkland, one of Pickett's veterans, whose life was saved at Gettysburg by a Bible which he carried in a pocket over his heart, died at his home at Warfield, Virginia, late Wednesday night, and was buried Friday.

A rifle ball pierced the book and having spent its force barely penetrated beyond the skin. Kirkland received six other wounds in the same action but none of these balls struck vital spots. One that lodged in his back after piercing his body was never removed and went to the grave with him.

Two summers ago Kirkland attended the Blue and Gray reunion at Gettysburg, returning here for the first time since he was borne off the field injured. At the time of his visit here in 1913 he met a number of Gettysburg people with whom he became quite well acquainted. He was one of the many interesting figures in the Virginia division of the big camp.

His death was due to a cold contracted a few months ago.

HAVE GOOD TRACK

Western Maryland Completes Improvement on the Mountain.

The Western Maryland track forces have about completed the re-laying of the main line from Blue Ridge Summit to Edgemont. The roadbed has been put in the finest condition and is as nearly a perfect track as is possible.

Another large force is rapidly completing the block-signal system over the mountain. Stations have been erected at every point from Chewsville to Blue Ridge Summit and on down as far east as Thurmont. At each of these stations two operators are employed. The system makes it impossible for a train to enter a block while any other train is on that block.

This system however is only temporary. The company is at work installing the automatic electric block-signal system, which is so constructed as to operate the signals by the movement of trains on the track which open and close the current that connects up the signals.

The work of installing this system has progressed over many long stretches of the lines and will be in full operation in a few months over the entire system. When installed the station operators now employed on the various blocks will be dispensed with.

THAT SUMMER CAPITAL

Engineers Surveying Highest Point on Mountain Near Buena Vista.

There are indications that the Blue Ridge Summit section as a site for a summer capital for the United States is being considered by some people connected with the government in Washington.

During the past few days engineers, said to be from Washington, have been taking elevations, measurements, etc., of Mt. Dunlap. Mt. Dunlap is close to Pennersville, about halfway between Buena Vista Springs and Blue Ridge Summit and in the middle of a triangle formed by Buena Vista, Monterey and Highfield. It is the highest point on the mountain in the summer resort section.

Government measurements give its height as 1760 feet above sea level. Monterey is 1420 feet and Blue Ridge Summit is only a few feet higher, while Buena Vista Springs is 1350 feet above sea level. There is a big plateau of comparatively level land on Mt. Dunlap and the view is the most extensive to be obtained from any point on the mountain.

PLAN LEAGUE'S ANNUAL MEETING

Women from Various Towns will Gather at Gettysburg Early Next Month to Discuss Matters of Importance to the College.

At a meeting of the local Woman's League of Gettysburg, held in the College Lutheran Church Lecture Room on Friday afternoon, tentative plans were made for the convention of all the leagues here on November 4 and 5. In addition to the Gettysburg organization there are now six other active leagues and it is expected that two or three others will be reported at next month's meeting here.

According to the present plans the first session will be held in Brua Chapel on the afternoon of Thursday, November 4. It will be presided over by Mrs. Hamilton Bayly, of Washington, the general president, and reports from the student secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and from the various league representatives, telling of work done, will mark this session.

In the evening an entertainment will be given by the college boys and present plans provide for a unique feature in the shape of a pageant depicting the various studies which are handled by the boys during their course. One is to take the part of "Alma Mater" and students will be used to represent the various branches. The details have not been worked out but this is expected to form a portion of the evening entertainment. Afterward a reception will be given the delegates at the "White House".

Another business session will be held on Friday morning and at noon the delegates will have a luncheon at one of the local hotels.

At Friday afternoon's meeting Mrs. H. R. Shepherd and Mrs. Clyde B. Stover were named as the delegates from the Gettysburg League to the convention. They were instructed to vote in favor of the plan to have the General League take up a campaign to raise funds for the erection of a Young Men's Christian Association Building as suggested by President Granville, in response to a request from the executive committee for some definite single idea toward which all might work.

MAY LOSE PLAYERS

Believe Some of Frederick's Fast Nine will Jump Next Year.

A contribution to "Sporting Life" under a Frederick date line says: "Locally it is not believed that Frederick will have a pennant winning organization next year and fans have given up all hope of seeing anything like the successful 1915 season, due to the action of the club officials in regard to the exhibition game played with the Philadelphia Athletics on August 31, as the result of which a number of Hustlers have threatened to jump their contracts.

"The officials advertised the game as for the benefit of the players who, they said, would have the loan of the proceeds divided among them as a show of appreciation for having won the pennant. The game was well advertised on this basis by all local papers, and owing to the belief that it was to be a benefit game drew the largest crowd ever assembled at Agricultural Park. After the game the club officials stated that the baseball association would retain the receipts and give the players nothing other than their regular salaries. This has caused a war between the players and the club officials."

FAMILY COMING

Will be here for Dedication on Tuesday, October 12.

Fourteen members of the family of General Webb have engaged accommodations at Hotel Gettysburg during the period to be covered by the Webb monument dedication here this month. They will arrive on October 11, attend the dedication the next day, and probably leave Wednesday for their homes. The majority are from New York.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN THE CHURCHES

Sunday will See Special Programs in Several of the Local Houses of Worship. Holy Communion in Three of them.

In almost every one of the churches of Gettysburg at least one special service will be held to-morrow, and in some of them several of the meetings will be of an unusual character. Practically all the churches will begin to-morrow to follow the winter schedule for their evening services.

The observance of Forty Hours' Devotion will begin in St. Francis Xavier church in the morning, to continue until Tuesday evening when the usual procession of the children will form a part of the closing service.

Holy Communion will be celebrated in the morning in the Reformed, College Lutheran and Presbyterian churches. Preparatory services were held in College Church Friday evening, and in the other two churches this afternoon.

Rally Day services will be held in the Sunday Schools of the Reformed and College Lutheran churches Sunday morning, and in the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society meeting on Sunday evening.

"Old Folks' Day" will be observed in the Methodist church in the morning with an additional reference to the Harvest Home season, and an appropriate sermon with old and familiar hymns.

The complete announcements as contributed by the local pastors appear on page three.

GERMANS FAIL TO HALT ALLIES

French Win More Ground at Vimy Heights.

AID SENT TO CROWN PRINCE

Seventh Day of Great Battle Shows Fighting Still Favors the Anglo-French Offensive Operations.

London, Oct. 2.—German counter attacks launched during the night in Champagne and in the Artois district in efforts to regain the positions captured by the allies were repulsed, the French war office announced.

The official statement shows that the fighting, now in its seventh day, is proceeding under conditions favorable to the allies, despite the fact that they are being assailed by Germany's finest troops, including the famous Prussian guard.

In the great battle in Artois the French have made further progress by means of attacks with hand grenades on German trenches, according to the Paris war office. In the Champagne district a German counter attack near Maisons de Champagne was checked. The Germans, violently bombarded, French trenches near Souchez, north of the Aisne, but made no infantry attack.

The Berlin war office, however, says the British have ceased their attacks and the Germans have made further progress north of Loos, near Lens. All French attacks east of Souchez, north of Neuville and in the Champagne, failed, it is further stated.

The French are hearing the brunt of the fighting now in progress on the western front. They are hammering at the second German line in Champagne, in the direction of the Grand Pre railway, and at the same time dropping bombs on the line and stations to prevent the Germans from bringing up reinforcements. Absence of news from the British front indicates that these forces are occupied with consolidating their positions in territory recently won.

The British forces now in France are estimated at a round million men, which will be increased by 500,000. Daily lengthening of the obituary columns of the London newspapers is beginning to measure the price paid by the British for their recent offensive. In the Argonne the German crown prince's army has been battered so badly that part of the army of General von Strantz has been sent to stiffen it.

The booty captured in the first rush of the forward movement is growing rapidly as the work of counting is completed and the seriousness of the German losses is now clear. The number of field and heavy guns taken in Champagne alone totals 121.

A bombardment of unusual intensity, directed against the newly won positions in Artois, has failed completely to dislodge the French troops or even to shake the security of their holds. The latest entrenchments, taken in this sector on the heights between Souchez and Vimy are being planted with heavy batteries.

With the German second line pierced at several points, a great battle is raging in Champagne, west of the Argonne, with the railway from Chalange to Bazancourt as its stake.

Upon this road the Kaiser's troops, from Rheims to the Argonne, depend for their supplies. All eyes now are fixed on the region around Lens, where the Franco-British pliers are closing in slowly and irresistibly upon the Germans. This district is known as France's "black country," Lens being the heart of the coal mining industry.

The clearing out process is making great headway eastward of Loos, which lies north of Lens. The British have pushed forward a considerable distance on La Bassée road and now occupy the entire oval of the plateau of which Hill No. 70, three miles from Lens, is the culminating point. Thus they dominate both the city and the plain. The French, advancing from Souchez, have carried Hill No. 140, a position of capital importance, about five miles to the south.

Rockefeller Fund Spends $2,571,903

New York, Oct. 2.—The Rockefeller Foundation has spent $2,571,903 and made appropriations for various commissions, charity and missionary agencies totaling $4,094,809, since its organization in May, 1913, to January 1, 1915, according to the concluding instalment of the first annual report. The report says the foundation's total resources are $100,048,000.

German Loan Totals $3,025,350,000. Berlin, Oct. 2.—Statistics of the third German war loan have now been completed, and they show an increase over the total provisionally announced. The final figure is given by the Overseas News Agency as 12,010,000,000 marks ($3,025,350,000).

5 KILLED IN AUTO ON R. R. CROSSING

Man With Children Were Returning From School.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 2.—A collision at a blind grade crossing, at which there is no watchman, between an automobile loaded with school children and a Pennsylvania Railroad train on the Lancaster & Downingtown division resulted in five deaths and serious injury to two others. The accident occurred one mile west of Leola, near this city.

The dead are: Edwin Zell, of Monterey, aged fifty, driver of the car; Edwin Zell, Jr., aged twelve; Jason Groff, aged eight; Paul Groff, aged twelve, brother of Jason, both of Leola; Martha Bush, aged ten, of Monterey.

The injured are: George McCarthy, aged ten, and Mary Groff, aged ten, both of Leola. Zell was bound from his home to the Leola High School to get his older daughter when he was hailed by the children. Nine of them clambered into the machine and all were killed or injured a few minutes afterward except two.

Neither Zell nor the engineer were able to see each other because of a deep cut where the highway crosses the track.

MONFORD NEW G. A. R. CHIEF

Cincinnati Veterans Elected Commander at Annual Encampment.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Ellis R. Monford, of Cincinnati, O., was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the closing session of the annual encampment of the organization here today.

Three candidates were nominated. They were Frank O. Cole, of Jersey City, N. J.; William J. Patterson, of Pittsburgh; and Captain Monford. The contest was between the new commander-in-chief and the New Jersey candidate. Cole withdrew and the election of Captain Monford was made unanimous.

George H. Slaybaugh, of Washington, a treasury department employee, was elected senior vice-commander-in-chief.

The Army Nurses of the Civil War elected Mrs. Alice C. Risley, of Jefferson City, Mo., as its president.

Colonel Ambrose E. B. Stephens, of Cincinnati, was installed as commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans.

The contest for junior vice-commander-in-chief was won by Levan Dodge, of Berea, Ky.

B. F. Clarkson, of Baltimore, was elected chaplain and Ruben A. Adams, of Rochester, N. Y., surgeon general.

D'AMADE LEADS RUSSIANS

Special French Military Mission Reach Czar's Headquarters.

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—A special French military mission, headed by General A. G. L. d'Amade, has reached the headquarters of Emperor Nicholas at the front.

General d'Amade for some time was in command of the French forces on the Dardanelles front. He was relieved of this charge in May and recalled to France for a governmental mission, the nature of which was not announced.

Girl Killed in Auto Wreck

Reading, Pa., Oct. 2.—Miss Mamie Fisher is dead and four of her companions are in a hospital as the result of the wreck of their automobile on the Wyomissing bridge, in a suburb. Witnesses to the accident say the car was traveling at a high rate of speed when it ran into the railing of the bridge. The car turned turtle and was burned.

RUSS CURB FOE ON DVINSK LINE

Petrograd Says the Invaders Are Weakening.

CLAIM SEVERAL VICTORIES

Teuton Allies Also Fail in Effort to Resume Offensive on Front to South of Riga.

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—The situation all along the eastern front is declared by the war office, in its official statement, to be favorable to the Russian armies.

The reinforced armies of Field Marshal von Hindenburg have found a stone wall resistance blocking their drive on Dvinsk and have been unable to penetrate even the outer defenses of the stronghold. A German attempt to take the offensive in the Riga region also has been turned back.

On the other sectors of the battle line, from the Baltic to the Galician field, the war office does not concede any German advances of importance.

The morale of the Austro-German troops is declared to be broken and the Russian hosts have taken heart and are fighting more furiously than at any time during the invasion.

The official communication follows: "The Germans have made insignificant attempts at an offensive on the front in the region of Riga. Germans who tried to establish themselves on the eastern bank of the brook in the region of Kemmern were driven back to the other bank. The Germans also attacked the cemetery near the village of Vetroze, northwest of Bishalen, but were hurled back.

"Near Dvinsk nothing of importance has occurred. The offensive of enemy infantry south of Lake Dvinsk has been stopped by our cavalry charge.

"In the middle Styria region, near Clartorsk and Kolki, fighting continues. The enemy has been dislodged from the village of Konikovichy on the Styria, above Clartorsk.

"Near Lutsik, which we abandoned two days ago, a very stubborn fight has occurred in the region of the village of Silno. Our troops were obliged to retreat some sectors by the enemy's attack.

"The depression which has been observed in the ranks of the Germans has not been without influence on the morale of our men. This depression manifests itself in increasingly frequent instances of the abandonment by the Germans on the battlefield of slightly wounded soldiers and wagons on the line of their retreat, of the throwing away of arms and projectiles, and of the disorder and nervousness in their firing.

The Russian council of ministers today decided against the reception by Emperor Nicholas of a deputation from the Zemstvo municipalities.

The ministers are determined that the duma shall not be reassembled before November.

86,000 Russians Taken

Berlin, Oct. 2.—The German war office announced that during September there were captured, on the Russian front, about 96,000 men, thirty-seven cannon and 298 machine guns.

BERLIN REASSURES HOLLAND

Has Nothing to Fear, Says High Official German.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—Germany's attitude toward Holland, Belgium and Poland was outlined in an interview given by Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, under secretary for foreign affairs, to the Nieuwe Rotterdam Courant. This interview, reproduced in the Lokal Anzeiger, was given out as follows by the Overseas News Agency:

Dr. Zimmermann insisted Holland had nothing to fear from Germany. He said Germany would not violate the neutrality of Holland, or interfere with her political or economic independence. Germany appreciates the fact that Holland is maintaining a strict neutrality.

"As to Belgium, the under secretary stated, that its future was still unknown, but a solution of this difficult problem must be found which will render it certain that Belgium will not be utilized for the purposes of England."

TO OUST VON PAPEN UNLESS HE RETIRES

German Attache Guilty of Diplomatic Impropriety.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Unless Captain von Papen, the German military attaché, is voluntarily withdrawn by his government, indications were that within a short time the United States would request his recall.

All the papers carried by James J. F. Archibald, the American correspondent, involved in the case of Dr. Dumba, have now been placed before state department officials, and, while final decision will await the return of Secretary of State Lansing, it became known that the documents disclose a transgression of diplomatic proprieties on von Papen's part such as caused the recall of the Austrian ambassador.

In the list of documents are four cipher letters from Dr. Dumba, some from Captain von Papen, and one, it is believed, from Count von Bernstorff, although on the latter point official confirmation is lacking. In the batch, however, were letters from Count von Bernstorff, introducing Mr. Archibald. There is nothing so far as officials would disclose which indicated that the German ambassador had violated diplomatic proprieties.

BANDITS GET $5000 IN GEMS

Smash Store Window and Keep Off Pursuers With Revolvers.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Two desperadoes smashed the show window of Kennedy & Bros., jewelry store at 102 South Thirteenth street, seized diamonds worth $5000 and fled, firing at their pursuers.

Hundreds of persons were passing in the immediate vicinity, one of the busiest shopping centers in the city. There were many women in the crowds, and they screamed in terror when the firing began.

One of the men was caught. He said he was Nathan Heller, twenty-eight years, New York. He insisted that he had nothing to do with the robbery. The other man is still at liberty. The police believe there may be a third man implicated.

The diamonds were dropped during the pursuit of the thieves and were picked up by a messenger boy and promptly returned to their owners.

QUEER PERSIAN VEHICLES.

Riding in Them is Like Being in a Rolling Ship at Sea.

The two kinds of vehicles in common use in Persia differ only in appearance, the palaki being open, the kejevan covered with a tight roof, generally made waterproof and with curtains before the entrance to keep out the sun, rain, wind and snow. The kejevan is the more elaborate conveyance, heavier and more expensive to hire, and therefore is used chiefly by the richer classes.

But the most comfortable means of travel and one which is used only by the wealthiest and most luxurious classes is the takhtiravan. This is a sort of palakin consisting of a box about seven feet long and five feet high, fitted with doors and windows. Inside are a soft mattress and some comfortable cushions. The whole is built on the sedan chair principle, but with mules instead of men as bearers. The poles rest on the pack saddle on the backs of the mules, which walk tandem. They can, of course, only be used in the long plains and are useless when the route goes over hilly country. The motion reminds one of a rolling ship, and some people even get sick and seasick at first in them.

Such persons as princes, governors and high officials always travel with many followers and hangers-on. It is a most picturesque sight to meet such a caravan, from which the pipe bearer is never missing. In front of his saddle are fastened large round cases covered with bright gold cloth, containing the silver water bottles and the silver tops of the kalfas (water pipes). Under the horse on one side is a perforated metal fire box hanging on a chain and containing the burning charcoal, while on the other side swings a heavy leather bottle full of water in readiness to prepare the pipe on the road. A clever bearer prepares the apparatus as he rides along, gallops up to his master and hands him his ready prepared smoking pipe to enjoy a few puffs.

The luncheon or tea horse is another necessity for the journey. Anywhere on the high road it can be unloaded, and within a few minutes the felt carpet, carried on the saddle behind the rider, is spread on the ground, the samovar, cups, sugar and lemons arranged on a tray on one corner, and kneeling behind these, the servant hands out the tea to the travelers. When ready to remount they leave him behind; and he packs up and follows at a smart canter, soon rejoining the caravan.—Lieutenant Colonel A. Helicks in Travel.

An Army Surgeon

I think I hear faint moaning down that lane! I hope it is imagination, though. It's pretty hard to leave a chap in pain. But I'm as near their lines as I dare go. Ah, there it is again—a gasping cry! It's water he is calling for, poor lad! An English voice! Say, but I'd like to try! It can't be done—that's too infernal bad! I'll venture just a little down this slope. Oh, heavens, you—keep quiet if you can! It can't be done, I tell you—not a hope! It isn't fair to call like that, old man!

'Tis good and dark right here along this wall! Perhaps I might crawl by from tree to tree. I'll try it! D—n it, there's no chance at all! But then I've taken chances for a feel.

He must be near—I wish he'd groan a bit! Good God! A searchlight swinging out this way! It's just a question now how soon I'm hit! They've made the whole cursed place as light as day!

And now I've found you, just to find you dead! Ah, rifle shots! They're meant for me, I know! Shot through and through! My jacket's drenched in red! It was a doctor's call—I had to go! —O. C. A. Child in New York Times.

SLAYER, CONDEMNED TO DIE, SURRENDERS HERE.

Foreign Political Prisoner Seeks to Enter American University.

After hiding for four years Miroslav Sichinsky, a Ruthenian student, who shot and killed Count Andreas Pototsky, governor of Galicia, April 12, 1908, was twice condemned to death and escaped from prison, surrendered to United States Commissioner Frederic C. Howe at Ellis Island.

This is said to be the first time in the history of the United States that a foreign political prisoner has surrendered.

Sichinsky took this step because of his desire to have his status in the country adjudicated, so that he may become an American citizen, enter a university here and ultimately adopt a journalistic career. He was paroled in the custody of his counsel.

The importance of Sichinsky's surrender lies in the fact that in the proceedings before Commissioner Howe there will be revealed much of the secret history of long strife between various nationalities in Austria, which led to the assassination not only of Governor Pototsky, but also of Crown Prince Ferdinand in Serbia.

Count Pototsky was killed by revolver bullets fired while he was giving an audience to a delegation of students. His last words were: "Tell the emperor I was his most faithful servant."

Sichinsky was arrested immediately afterward. As he was led away he exclaimed: "I am no criminal. I have acted in behalf of my oppressed people." Sichinsky, who is thirty-nine years old, was the son of a member of parliament. He had taken part in many riots previously.

After he twice had been sentenced to die the popular sentiment in Austria and petitions sent by Ukrainian organizations in this country and Canada caused Emperor Francis Joseph to commute the sentence to twenty years of hard labor. In 1909 he was sent to prison in Stanislaw.

With funds obtained in the United States and Canada Sichinsky escaped. On the night of Nov. 12, 1911, he walked out of prison in the clothes of a keeper. For three months he hid in Ukrainian villages and then escaped to Sweden.

At the outbreak of the present war he went to Austria as correspondent of a Norwegian newspaper. He was twice arrested, his identity being unknown, but his Norwegian passports saved him. Similar passports enabled him to enter this country under an assumed name eight months ago. Since then he has been living in New York city with fellow countrymen.

NEW EGG LAYING RECORD.

White Leghorn Produces 287 Eggs in 330 Days.

A new world's record for egg laying competitions was established when Lady Eglantine, a White Leghorn, laid her two hundred and eighty-seventh egg in 330 days at the Delaware college agricultural experiment station, Newark, Del. Lady Eglantine is contesting in the fourth annual international contest under the auspices of a newspaper of Philadelphia. The best previous record was 286 eggs in 365 days, made last year by a Plymouth Rock hen.

The new champion is an American hen bred from an English strain at the Eglantine farms, Greensboro, Md. Five hens of this strain have laid 1,139 eggs in forty-seven weeks.

The average hen lays about seventy eggs a year.

BATTERIES FIRE AT AN UNSEEN FOE; FIGHTING IN ALPS

Rifle of Little Use—Infantry Depends on Bayonet and Hand Grenade.

THE correspondent of the Daily Chronicle of London sends the following account of a visit to the Italian front in the Trentino, dated Rocca Pietora, Agordo valley, Sept. 2:

"Our hill was as a pygmy contrasted with the giants of the mountain family that shut us in on the right and the left. In our front a rolling valley, with a verdure as green as the artistic brush of Nature ever painted, swept away northward, ending at the foot of the towering Col di Lana, the center of the Austrian position at this point.

"Where the valley flattened out the sun glistened on the white walls but roofless houses of the destroyed village of Pieve de Livinalongo, burned by the enemy in his retreat.

"The Col di Lana runs up to a point, a round, blunted point, covered with a sparse vegetation. Sentinel-like, beside the Col, stands a colossus of gray dolomite granite, with rough hewn sides and serrated crest.

"The Col di Lana, which is over 7000 feet high, slopes away gently toward the west and loses itself in the valley of Livinalongo. On the south and southwest the faces of the Col are thickly wooded.

A Strange Warfare.

"There is something unreal, uncanny, about modern warfare as it is conducted today among the Trentino Alps. The men in the trenches high up on the shell torn sides of the Col di Lana see each other occasionally, when they emerge from their burrows and come to grips in the open.

"Then it is rarely rifle; it is chiefly bayonet, but frequently a steel is replaced by the deadly hand grenade.

"When the Italians won their way up this stubbornly contested hill, capturing trench line after trench line, the Austrians invariably showed hand grenades upon the stormers, without, however, arresting their progress. With the enemy, at all events, the rifle as a lethal weapon in trench warfare seems to be falling into desuetude. A bullet is an uncertain missile. It has been calculated that where one strikes home a good two score will often miss the average human target. So the hand grenade here, as in Flanders and in the trenches of the Dardanelles, after a good century and a half of oblivion, is coming into its own again.

"If the infantryman on the Italian side has an occasional peep at his enemy and sees him in the flesh, and vice versa, the artilleryman posted among the rocky crags of the Trentino, he be Italian or Austrian, can make no such boast. From a carefully concealed position behind some high hill he shoots at an unseen enemy of ten or twelve miles away, whose guns are half buried behind some other hill. There is no smoke, no flash to indicate the whereabouts of the battery engaged in this high angle fire, and the track of the arriving shell can be but guessed approximately.

"I realized all this and much more as I crept on all fours into a rock hewn, rock roofed dugout which served as the chief observation post of the officer commanding the artillery in this zone of operations.

"I might have stumbled on the post half a dozen times without suspecting its existence, so well is it concealed. By gluing one's eyes to a narrow peephole one looked across the valley to the Austrian position on the Col di Lana.

Belgium Will Observe Washington's Birthday.

Feb. 22 to Be Made National Holiday by King Albert.

Belgium is ever freed of the invader and once more takes her place among the free nations of the world there is every reason to believe that Feb. 22, the birthday of Washington, will be made a national holiday in King Albert's country. By honoring Washington the Belgians think they can show their appreciation of what the United States has done for the relief of Belgian noncombatants since the war began. The commission for relief in Belgium in a statement issued recently said:

"Early in February last officials of the various provinces in Belgium began to discuss the question of making Washington's birthday a holiday. The burgomasters and other officials in all the provinces throughout Belgium held meetings and drafted an official proclamation, a copy of which has just been received by the commission."

The copy of the proclamation received by the commission was issued by the burgomaster and aldermen of Hodamont. It said in part:

"On the 22d instant the people of the United States are celebrating a national holiday. This circumstance will be for our distressed people an occasion when we may show to that great republic our feelings of high admiration."

"So will the 22d of February be for every Belgian citizen a day of veneration for that wonderful people from whom we are receiving so many marks of true friendship."

Simple Cure for Cold.

Put one-half teaspoonful of baking soda in a cup with one-half teaspoonful aromatic spirits of ammonia; add one-half cupful hot water. Drink hot and cover up well in bed.

Child's Proper Weight.

A child of three feet should weigh a little more than 28 pounds, and up to four feet two pounds more for each inch of height. Thence the increase is 2½ pounds.

AN UNSEEN FOE; STRANGE WARFARE

Graphic Story of Artillery War as It Is Waged Day to Day in Northern Trentino.

"Half a dozen telephone wires led into a second dugout. Here sat the second in command, dictating his chief's orders to the battery commander many miles away. On the surface above the dugout and its annex not a single living being was to be seen. There was an awe inspiring, mysterious silence over all. It was hard to believe that this was war and that soon the air would be rent with the crack and roar of deep throated monsters whose voice would carry death to the Austrian soldiers in the trenches of the Col di Lana.

"The Austrian guns at Chert, to the west of the Col di Lana, had been busy that morning searching vainly for the Italian position. Now it was the turn of the Italian gunners. 'You are just in time to see something,' said the Italian commander, an old acquaintance from an eastern European capital. I stretched myself by his side in our narrow rock chamber. He spoke a few words in a low tone. 'Range so and so, with common shell. Begun!'

Orders to the Battery.

"The order was repeated in the telephone box and then was dashed over the wire by the officer-operator to the battery commander far away. Five seconds had barely elapsed when a shell cleft the air from behind the hills and exploded between the first and second lines of Austrian trenches, raising a great column of brown earth where it had landed.

"That's good, but lower and to the right and left," commanded the officer.

"The telephone operator spoke again, the guns thundered anew, and this time so remarkably accurate was the shooting that six shells struck full in the first Austrian trench, twisting and tearing the concrete and earth banked parapet as if it had been hit by an earth quake. It must have gone hard with the soldiers who were in the trench at the time.

"The rain of common shell continued, and the Italian commander, observing a movement among the garrison of the trench, who were running in a crouching attitude along the uncovered communication ways toward the second line of trenches, gave a one word order—'Shrapnel!' And the shrapnel, too, arrived quickly with deadly precision and overtook many of the fleeing Austrians before they could gain the sought for cover.

"And so the artillery fire went on until the steep sides of the Col di Lana were honeycombed afresh with gaping holes. All this time the Austrians gave no sign. But when the Italian fire ceased the enemy's guns from the neighborhood of Chert replied vigorously, but wildly.

"Evidently the Austrian commander was angry because of the effectiveness of the Italian fire against his trenches, and he sought to silence the offending guns. His shells spread themselves over a radius of many miles, dropping into the valleys behind, where there was nothing to hit worth the lifting.

"On our homeward path the Austrian guns, which had in the meantime become silent, renewed their spasmodic fire, their missiles tumbling over hill-tops and down into deep valleys in a casual sort of way which made it necessary sometimes to have a nice, snug recess at hand in which to abide until the shell storm blew over.

"And this is war, artillery war, as it is waged from day to day in the northern Trentino."

"So will the 22d of February be for every Belgian citizen a day of veneration for that wonderful people from whom we are receiving so many marks of true friendship."

Simple Cure for Cold.

Put one-half teaspoonful of baking soda in a cup with one-half teaspoonful aromatic spirits of ammonia; add one-half cupful hot water. Drink hot and cover up well in bed.

Child's Proper Weight.

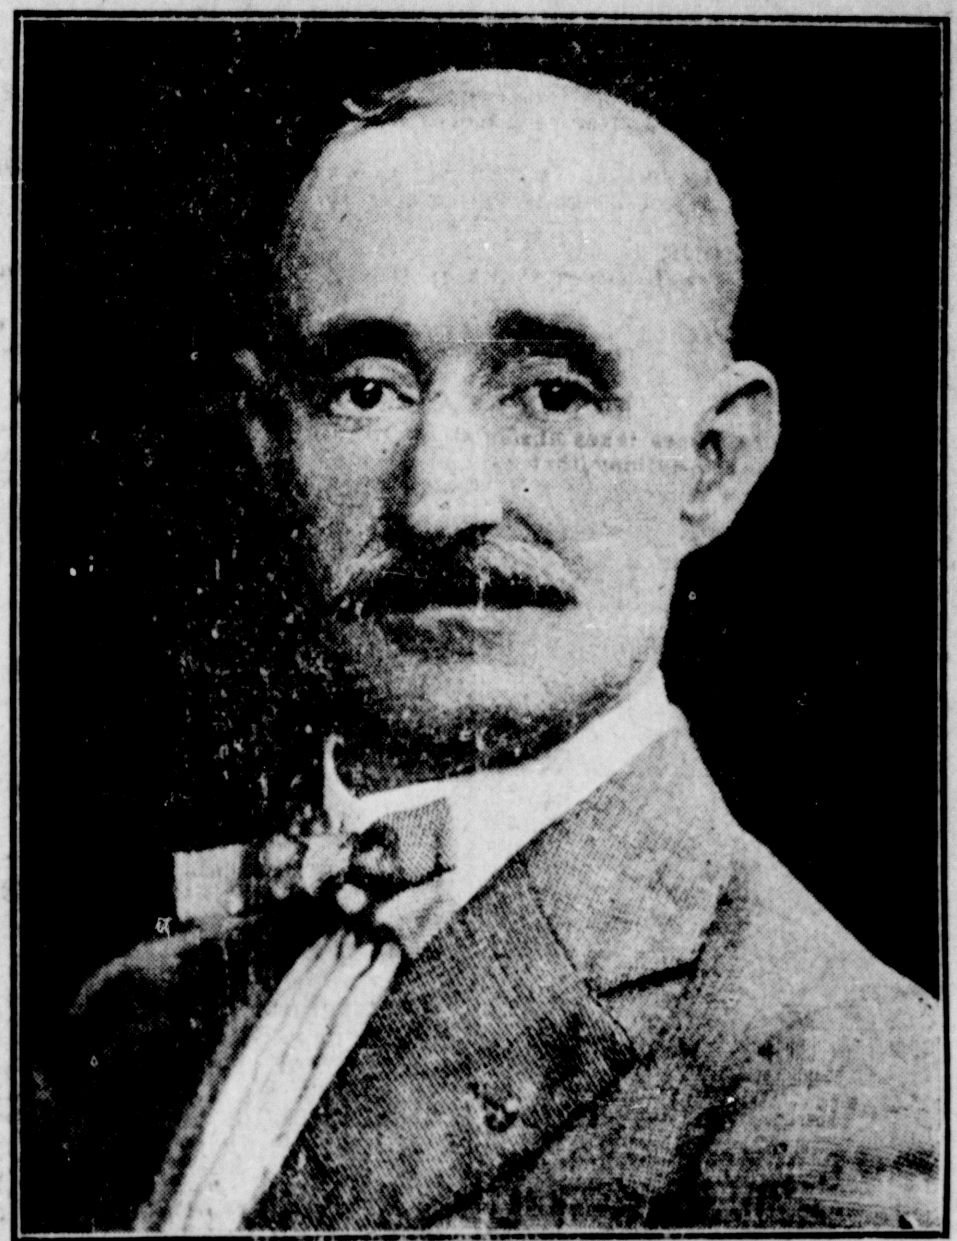

A child of three feet should weigh a little more than 28 pounds, and up to four feet two pounds more for each inch of height. Thence the increase is 2½ pounds.

Movements of the Heart.

The heart of an average man makes about one three-thousandth of a volt of electricity at every beat, and an instrument sensitive enough to measure it has been invented.

PENROD

CHAPTER XXIII. Over the Fence.

IN no mood to approve of anything introduced by Fanchon to she had scornfully refused from the first to dance the new "step" and because of its being so popularly found herself neglected in a society where she had reigned as beauty and belle. Faithless Penrod, dazed by the sweeping Fanchon, had utterly forgotten the matter. He had not once asked Marjorie to dance. All a forenoon the light of indignation had been growing brighter in her eyes, though Marjorie Levy's defection to the lady from New York had not faded this flame. From the moment Fanchon had whispered familiarly in Penrod's ear and Penrod had blushed Marjorie had been occupied exclusively with resentment against that guilty pair. It seemed to her that Penrod had no right to allow a strange girl to whisper in his ear, that his blushing when the strange girl did it was atrocious and that the strange girl herself ought to be arrested.

Forgotten by the merry-makers, Marjorie stood alone upon the lawn, clenching her small fists, watching the new dance at its high tide and hating it with a hatred that made every inch of her tremble. And, perhaps because jealousy is a great awakener of the senses, she had a perception of something just worse than lack of dignity—something vaguely but outrageously reprehensible. Finally when Penrod brushed by her, touched her with his elbow and did not even see her, Marjorie's state of mind not unmingled with emotion became dangerous. In fact, a trained nurse chancing to observe her at this juncture would probably have advised that she be taken home and put to bed. Marjorie was on the verge of hysterics.

She saw Fanchon and Penrod assume the double embrace required by the dance. The "Slingo Slingo Slide" burst from the orchestra like the fluting shriek of a ghastly negro, and all the little couples began to bob and dip away.

Marjorie made a scene. She sprang upon the platform and stamped her foot. "Penrod! Schofield!" she shouted. "You BEHAVE yourself!"

The remarkable girl took Penrod by the ear. By his ear she swung him away from Fanchon and faced him to ward the lawn.

"You march straight out of here!" she commanded.

Penrod marched. He was stunned, obeyed automatically without question and had very little realization of what was happening to him. Altogether and without reason he was in precisely the condition of an elderly spouse detected in flagrant misbehavior. Marjorie similarly was in precisely the condition of the party who detects such misbehavior. It may be added that she had acted with a promptness, a decision and a disregard of social consequences all to be commended to the attention of ladies in like predicament.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" she raged when they reached the lawn. "Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

"What for?" he inquired helplessly.

"You be quiet!"

"But what'd I do, Marjorie? I haven't done anything to you," he pleaded. "I haven't even seen you all afternoon!"

"You be quiet!" she cried, tears filling her eyes. "Keep still, you ugly boy! Shut up!"

She slapped him.

He should have understood from this how much she cared for him, but he rubbed his cheek and declared ruefully:

"I'll never speak to you again!"

"You will too!" she sobbed passionately.

"I will not!" he vowed.

He turned to leave her, but paused.

His mother, his sister Margaret and their grownup friends had finished their tea and were approaching from the house. Other parents and guardians were with them, coming for their children, and there were carriages and automobiles waiting in the street. But the "Slingo Slingo" went on regardless.

The group of grown up people hesitated and came to a halt, gazing at the pavilion.

"What are they doing?" gasped Mrs. Williams, blushing deeply. "What is it? What is it?"

"What is it?" Mrs. Gelbraith echoed in a frightened whisper. "What?"

"They're tangoing!" cried Margaret Schofield, "or bunny bugging or grizzly bearing or—"

"They're only turkey trotting," said Robert Williams.

With fearful exclamations the mothers, aunts and sisters rushed upon the pa-

von. "Of course it was dreadful," said Mrs. Schofield an hour later, rendering her lord an account of the day, "but it was every bit the fault of that one extraordinary child. And of all the quiet, demure little things—that is, I mean when she first came. We all spoke of how exquisite she seemed—so well trained, so finished! Eleven years old! I never saw anything like her in my life!"

"I suppose it's the New Child," her husband grunted.

"And to think of her saying there ought to have been champagne in the lemonade!"

"Probably she'd forgotten to bring her pocket flask," he suggested musingly.

"But aren't you proud of Penrod?" cried Penrod's mother. "It was just as I told you. He was standing clear outside the pavilion!"

"I never thought to see the day. And Penrod was the only boy not doing it, the only one to refuse. All the others were!"

"Every one!" she returned triumphantly. "Even George Bassett!"

"Well," said Mr. Schofield, parting her on the shoulder, "I guess we can hold up our heads at last."

Penrod was out in the yard staring at the empty marquee. The sun was on the horizon line, so far behind the back fence, and a western wind from the house blazed in gold unobtainable to the eye. His day was nearly over.

He signed and took from the inside pocket of his new jacket the "sling-shot" Aunt Sarah had given him that morning.

He snapped the rubbers absently. They held fast, and his next impulse was entirely irresistible. He found a shapely stone, fitted it to the leather and drew back the innocent catapult for a shot. A sparrow hopped upon a branch between him and the house, and he aimed at the sparrow, but the reflection from the dazzling window struck in his eyes as he loosed the leather.

He missed the sparrow, but not the window. There was a loud crash, and to his horror he caught a glimpse of his father, smitten in mid-swing, quaking a shower of broken glass glittering razor-dimishing wildly. Words crashed with the glass, stentorian words, fragmentary, but colossal.

Penrod stood petrified, a broken sling in his hand. He could hear his parent's booming descent of the back stairs, instant and furious, and then,

THE END.

Central Asia.

The people living in the cotton belt of central Asia represent a conglomerate of all the races and nations that in ages past have inhabited these regions. From pure Aryans to full fledged Mongols. They all adhere to the Mohammedan faith and speak various dialects of the Tartar-Sart-Bokhara language except in the southwestern part, where the influence of the Persian language is felt.

Safe Invitation.

The impromptu efforts of sidewalk and board fence chalk humorists are usually more and than funny, but the other day one of them passed through a railroad yard where heavy construction work was going on, and, spring a pile of two ton iron girders, chalked on them, "Take One."—Everybody's.

Cannon and Thunder Compared.

The comparison between the sound of cannon and "heaven's artillery" is hackneyed enough. But the human invention can at least claim great superiority as regards the area over which it is heard. There is no doubt about cannon fire being heard well over 100 miles away. The guns of Waterloo were heard at Creil, fifty leagues distant from the battlefield. But it is doubtful whether thunder can be heard at a greater distance than twenty miles. When the church steeple of Lostwithiel was destroyed by lightning, the accompaniment of such a roar of thunder that the oldest inhabitant could not remember. Smeaton, the engineer, who was about thirty miles distant, heard not the slightest noise.—London Standard.

To Have Smaller Feet.

The sex will rejoice to hear that an English scientist declares that women's feet are growing smaller. He claims that a study of former types of feet goes to prove that the feet of modern people are more shapely than those of their ancestors or those of the savage races. Perhaps, after all, the mistakes of ill-fitting shoes have not seriously deformed the general type of foot.

Gave Name to Party.

The word "Radical," as applied to a British political party, originated in a speech made by Charles J. Fox in 1797, when he referred to the necessity for "radical" reform.

Sensitiveness.

Sensitiveness is a form of fear, greatly exaggerated by introspection. Like all negative emotions sensitiveness grows with indulgence and easily becomes a fixed habit of thought and feelings.—Nautlius.

Prick the Apples.

When baking apples prick the skin with a fork and they will not burst.

He Missed the Sparrow, but Not the Window.

red hot above white father, Mr. Schofield burst out of the kitchen door and hurried forth upon his son.

"What do you mean?" he demanded, shaking Penrod by the shoulder.

"Ten minutes ago, for the very first time in our lives, your mother and I were saying we were proud of you, and here you go and throw a rock at me through the window when I'm shaving for dinner!"

"I didn't!" Penrod quavered. "I was shooting at a sparrow, and the sun got in my eyes, and the sling broke!"

"What sling?"

"This a."

"Where'd you get that devilish thing?"

Don't you know I've forbidden you a thousand times!"

"It ain't mine," said Penrod. "It's yours."

"What?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy meekly.

"Aunt Sarah Crim gave it to me this morning and told me to give it back to you. She said she took it away from you thirty-five years ago. You killed her hen, she said. She told me some more to tell you, but I've forgotten."

"Oh," said Mr. Schofield.

He took the broken sling in his hand, looked at it long and thoughtfully, and he looked longer, and quite as thoughtfully, at Penrod. Then he turned away and walked toward the house.

"I'm sorry, papa," said Penrod.

Mr. Schofield coughed, and as he reached the door called back, but without turning his head.

"Never mind, little boy. A broken window isn't much harm."

When he had gone in Penrod wandered down the yard to the back fence, climbed upon it and sat in reverie there.

A slight figure appeared, likewise upon a fence, beyond two neighboring yards.

"Yay, Penrod!" called comrade Sam Williams.

"Yay!" returned Penrod mechanically.

"I caught Billy Blue Hill!" shouted Sam, describing retribution in a manner perfectly clear to his friend. "You were mighty lucky to get out of it."

"I know that!"

"You wouldn't of, if it hadn't been for Marjorie."

"Well, don't I know that?" Penrod shouted, with heat.

"Well, so long!" called Sam, dropping from his fence, and the friendly voice came then, more faintly, "Many happy returns of the day, Penrod!"

And now a plaintive little whine sounded from below Penrod's feet, and, looking down, he saw that Duke, his faithful, old, scrappy dog, sat in the grass, gazing seekingly up at him.

The last shaft of sunshine of that day fell graciously and like a blessing upon the boy sitting on the fence. Years afterward a quiet sunset would recall to him sometimes the gentle evening of his twelfth birthday and bring him the picture of his boy self sitting in rosy life upon the fence, gazing pensively down upon his faithful, scrappy, little dog Duke. But something else, surpassing, he would remember of that hour, for in the side street close by a pink skirt flickered from behind a shade tree to the shelter of the fence. There was a gleam of amber curls, and Penrod started as something like a tiny white wing fluttered by his head, and there came to his ears the sound of a light laugh and of light footsteps departing, the laughter tremulous, the footsteps fleet.

In the grass between Duke's forepaws there lay a white note folded in the shape of a cocked hat, and the sun sent forth a final amazing glory as Penrod opened it and read, "Your my boy."

SEGREGATE SICK HOGS

Cholera Is Not the Only Disease Troubling Swine.

Allying Animals Should Be Taken From Herd and Isolated Until Nature of Distress Can Be Fully Determined Upon.

(By D. H. PRESTON HOSKINS, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

The importance of a correct diagnosis, where hog cholera is suspected, cannot be over-estimated. Hog cholera serum, administered to a herd thought to be infected with cholera, but in reality suffering from some other disease, usually means time and effort wasted, and, if the treated hogs keep on dying, distrust of the serum treatment. Except in very unusual cases, either a positive or negative diagnosis of cholera can be made, if there is opportunity for a post-mortem examination. In doubtful cases a post-mortem is always proper.

Just as soon as it is noticed that a hog is sick, it should be separated from the herd and kept isolated until the exact nature of the trouble can be determined.

Diseases which are most frequently mistaken for hog cholera are intestinal worms, various digestive disturbances, lung worms, inflammation of the bowels and necrobacillosis. The last named disease is caused by the same germ that is responsible for sore-throat and bull-nose of pigs. Most of the confusion of the two diseases arises from the fact that in some cases pigs affected with necrobacillosis will show the speckled appearance of the kidneys which has been looked upon as so characteristic of hog cholera.

Hog cholera serum is of no value in combating any disease except hog cholera.

BULGARIA IS AGAIN WARNED

France and Britain Take Military Measures.

CLASHES ON SERBIAN BORDER

Alies Regard Presence of German Officers With Ferdinand's Army "With the Utmost Gravity."

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Sir Edward Grey, British foreign secretary, announced that German and Austrian officers were arriving in Bulgaria to direct the Bulgarian army. The secretary said this was a fact which the allies regard "with the utmost gravity."

The foreign secretary authorized the following statement: "Information has been received that German and Austrian officers have for several days been arriving in Bulgaria with a view to taking an active part in directing the Bulgarian army. This action is precisely similar to that taken in Turkey, where German officers forced Turkey to make an entirely unprovoked attack upon Russia last year."

"Since the allied powers are bound to support the states who are threatened by such proceedings in Bulgaria, this news is regarded as of the utmost gravity."

Bulgars Clash With Serbs

Paris, Oct. 2.—The Temps announces that France and Great Britain have already taken military measures to defend Serbia and Greece against Bulgarian aggression.

There already have been several clashes between Serbians and Bulgarians along the frontier, according to advices from Turin. A Bulgarian patrol at Trichouke is reported to have attacked Serbian sentinels, who retreated. The Bulgars crossed into Serbian territory, where they remained several hours.

It is said two ultimatums soon will be addressed to King Ferdinand, one by the central empires and the other by the quadruple entente, making imperative an immediate decision by King Ferdinand as to what part his country is to play in the war.

A Bucharest despatch says that Germany has offered Bulgaria all of Macedonia, all of old Serbia and Albania, with a port on the Adriatic sea.

An Athens report that Ferdinand has telegraphed King Constantine, of Greece, that he is doing his utmost to preserve the friendly relations between Bulgaria and Greece. Observers of the Balkan situation here believe that Premier Venizelos's proposal of joint demobilization opens the way for a gradual back-draw on the part of Bulgaria.

Serbia has offered Greece the districts of Gulevci and Dolan in Macedonia in exchange for participation in an expedition of the allies against Bulgaria, according to the Giornale d'Italia.

Three hundred thousand Germans have been concentrated at Temesvar, Hungary, seventy-two miles northeast of Belgrade, with 200 cannons, including fifty siege guns and sixty airplanes, but will not be ready for an attack in less than two weeks.

132 DEAD IN STORM

Nineteen Persons Killed When Hurricane Hit New Orleans.

Memphis, Oct. 2.—One hundred and thirty-two persons were killed in the gulf hurricane of Wednesday, and more than 500 were injured, and approximately 700 are reported missing, according to reports received by railroad officials.

The property loss in the stricken territory may reach more than $5,000,000. Appeals for help are coming from many places.

According to statements of railroad authorities, the dead in New Orleans and vicinity number eighty-nine. Thirty dead and 500 injured are reported from points between New Orleans and Mobile. A report from Jackson, Miss., said fifty-one persons were believed to have lost their lives in the territory between the Mississippi and Pearl rivers. Hundreds of families were marooned in trees.

One person was killed and eighteen injured at Natchez. Thirty-nine deaths are reported from Priere, northwest of New Orleans.

Duponts Give Stock to Employees. Wilmington, Del., Oct. 2.—The Dupont Powder company began the distribution of bonus stock to officers and employees in the offices of the company as a reward for faithful service. While no announcement has been made by the company, it is understood that 2000 shares of the common stock of the company is being distributed as a bonus to the men and women in its employ. This would represent a sum equal to $1,600,000, based on the $800 market price of the stock.

Eighteen Hurt in Railroad Wreck. Parkersburg, W. Va., Oct. 2.—Eighteen passengers were injured when a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train was derailed at Belleville, eighteen miles below this city. The smoker and sleeper left the tracks, the sleeper having one side torn off when it side-swiped a steel gondola. None of the injured will die.

FINDS MOVIE TRUST UNLAWFUL COMBINE

Menace to Trade and Should be Dissolved, Court Rules.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Judge Dickson, in the United States district court here, handed down an opinion ordering the dissolution of the Motion picture trust.

The suit was brought by the government under the Sherman anti-trust law against the Motion Picture Patents company and twelve other corporations and eleven individuals engaged in the motion picture trade. Astonishing profits were made by the trust, according to estimates furnished by Attorney General Grosvenor, who conducted the prosecution. These were made possible by trusting competitors out of the way, according to the government's contention.

It was declared that in the first year of its existence, the General Film company, one of the defendants, disbursed more than $2,000,000 from profits, paid seven per cent. on its preferred stock, twelve on its common, and that at least one of the organizers netted $500,000 on an investment of $100,000.

The following are the defendants: Motion Picture Patents company, New York; General Film company, New York; Biograph company, New York; Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Orange, N. J.; Essanay Film Manufacturing company, Chicago; Kalem company, Inc., New York; George Kleine, Chicago; Lubin Manufacturing company, Philadelphia; Pathe Freres, New Jersey; Selig Polyscope company, Chicago; Vitagraph company of America, New York; Armat Moving Picture company, Washington.

BANKER INDICTED

With Two Others, He is Charged With Perjury.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National Bank; William J. Flather, vice-president, and H. H. Flather, cashier of the institution, were indicted, charged with perjury in connection with the bank's recent suit against Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency.

Four indictments were returned against each of the bank officials who are charged with perjury in making affidavit which set forth that the bank never had engaged in stock market transactions and had no transactions with Lewis Johnson & company, local stock brokers.

The indictments are a sequel to the suit of the bank which alleged that Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams, because of personal animus toward some of the bank's officers, had conspired to injure the institution by withdrawing public deposits, making extraordinary demands for special reports, and finally by imposing a fine of $5,000 upon the bank for failure to make a certain report called for by the comptroller.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Cravath of the Phillies Great Home Run Hitter.

Cliff Carlton Cravath, of the Philadelphia Nationals promises to be the greatest home run hitter the game has ever known. The record for circuit smashes in a single season in the big league is twenty-five, made by Buck Freeman, the Washington slugger, in 1880. The modern record until recently was held by Schulte of the Cubs, who made twenty-one homers in 1911. Cravath has already passed Schulte's mark, and it is likely that he will still further beat it before the season ends. Cravath has before him bettered both records, but not in major league company. In 1911, while with Minneapolis of the American association, he drove out twenty-nine long ones, and the same year he batted for 233, making 231 hits, including fifty-three doubles, thirteen triples and with the twenty-nine home runs showing a phenomenal total of 387 bases. In 1913 Cravath set a record for the league in which he performs by driving in 123 runs, the previous high water mark having been 121 runs, made by Frank Schulte in 1911. Cravath knocked nineteen homers in 1913 and reached the same number last year.

Champion Woman Golfer.

Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, who won the women's golf championship of the United States by beating Mrs. W. A. Gavin of England by 3 up and 2 to play at the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Ill., proved her ability as a sterling golfer. The victory puts Mrs. Vanderbeck on the same pedestal which was occupied by Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Boston last year, for the Philadelphia woman now is the holder of both the national and eastern titles. As the national championship is decided by match play and the eastern championship is a medal play test, the golfer who wins them both demonstrates her worth in both phases of the game. Mrs. Jackson did it last year and now Mrs. Vanderbeck has followed in her footsteps.

Won His Bets.

George Mitchell, the happy-go-lucky big Englishman who wagered a large amount of money among his friends that he could stand longer before Georges Carpentier, the French champion, than did Bombardier Wells, has been killed at the front. He was a second lieutenant of the Black Watch. Mitchell was a good amateur boxer, and he declared he was better than Wells and would prove it by paying Carpentier to meet him. Carpentier agreed and got $500 for knocking the big Englishman out in one minute and thirty-five seconds. Wells, in a regular bout, was knocked out by the Frenchman in seventy-five seconds. Mitchell journeyed all the way to Paris to get knocked out, but he won his bets.

Baseball Club Insures Players.

The Denver club of the Western league has insured both players and umpires appearing at its park under the workman's compensation law. Hereafter any arbitrator who is the object of attack by excited fan or player or who is injured by accident during the game will receive pay during his convalescence.

ROAD BUILDING

POOR ROADS ARE EXPENSIVE

More Fuss Over Freight Rates Than Cost of Hauling Crops From Farm to Railroad.

A good deal of fuss is raised over freight rates, and everybody who has anything to do with the transportation of crops or merchandise is up in arms the moment freight rates are to be advanced. But at the same time, there is a strong tendency to give no attention to the cost of hauling farm crops from their point of origin on the farm to the railroad station; a matter of greater concern than all the railroad rates in the world, says Fruit Grower and Farmer.

Uncle Sam has found that it costs in the neighborhood of 25 cents a mile to haul a ton over the average country road. But this cost may run up to ten times this figure over bad roads, and be reduced as many times over good roads with modern vehicles. This cost is something that is rarely ever figured in by the producer when summing up his marketing expense, even though it will frequently make a figure that is not much less than the cost of getting his produce to the distant market by rail.

Good roads are expensive to build and are more or less of an expense to maintain, but if it were possible to compare the lowered cost of transporting the farm produce over the road before and after improvement it would be found that the cost was paid back with interest within a very few years after improvement. Low grades are of first consideration, for it costs more money to haul over a hilly road than over a level one, where the surface is the same. But on almost any road, it is easily possible to have at least a smooth surface on which to drive.

The King drag is the implement that will make the surface smooth and keep it smooth. And the wonder of it is that more farms do not have a drag as an essential part of their equipment. Road dragging time is just coming with the breaking up of the snow, and its usual accompaniment of mud. Heavy traffic over such roads makes ruts and bad roads of the worst sort, unless the ruts are filled by dragging. Prepare now to keep your road dragged this year, and lower the cost of hauling your produce to market.

Remember, also, that wide-tired wagons pull more easily than narrow-tired ones 50 per cent of the times when they are used. The wide tire does not cut so deep and makes a better track on roads which are traveled while the ground is soft. The wide tire packs the surface into a firm road-bed, and thus enables it to drain well in time of rain.

In cornfields, plowed fields, field lanes, and on pasture and alfalfa land, the draft on the wide tire is considerably less, no matter what the condition of the soil. The wide tire does not cut up the mow or field as does the narrow tire. This is also important, as a smooth surface in the mow is much easier to mow over. Use no tire less than four inches on your fields or on soft roads; make a King road drag and use it. Thus lower your own freight rates by lowering your hauling costs.

POPULAR MECHANICS

An Ingenious Fruit Container.

Realizing that the ordinary barrel is unsuitable for safe and convenient shipping of apples and pears and that boxing is an expensive item in this connection, a partitioned barrel has been invented by a fruit man in British Columbia, patents for which have been applied for in Canada and the United States. The container is similar to an ordinary barrel, divided into two equal parts by two partitions so adjusted as to permit the barrel being saved in two, thus making two half barrels. The advantages claimed for this patent container are that it can be made of cheap sawed lumber, shipped in the "knockdown" state and easily assembled at the packing house. The fruit can be shipped without wrapping owing to the firmness imparted by the central partitions, and it is said to arrive in perfect condition, while the convenience afforded by sawing the barrel in two enables customers to purchase a half or a whole barrel containing two varieties of fruit.—Commerce Reports.

Early Coal Mining.

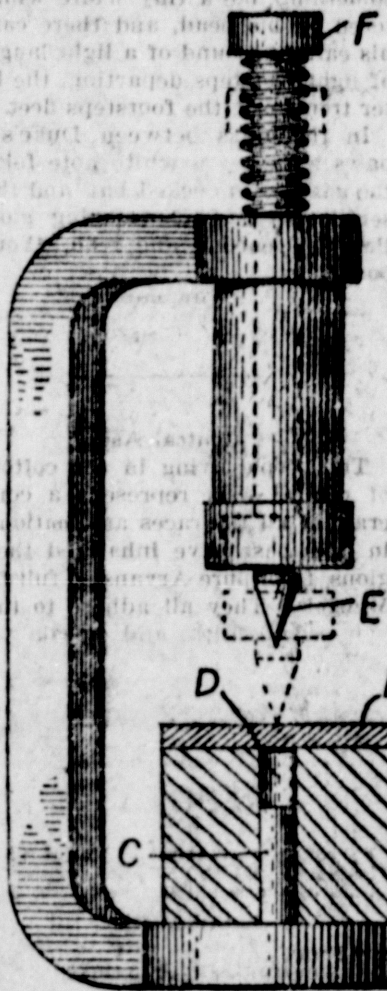

Maryland and the adjoining counties in West Virginia which make up what is known as the Cumberland region constitute the only districts outside of the anthracite region of Pennsylvania whose records of coal production have been kept from the earliest years. These districts have been commonly known as the Georges creek (Cumberland) and the Piedmont regions. The Cumberland region was opened in 1812, and the Piedmont region began shipping in 1853.—United States Geological Survey.

Device For Farm Gates.

A simple device for the operation of the heavy, and cumbersome barnyard gate is that of attaching a wheel to the free or swinging end. In many instances farm gates are so long that the ordinary hinge is not strong enough to support the entire weight, and it is necessary to allow the free end to rest on the ground. The use of a wheel makes it unnecessary to lift the gate when it is desired to open or close it.

Wagon Tire Marking Tool.

The tool for marking wagon tires, herewith illustrated, is the work of a Missouri inventor, says Blacksmith and Wheelwright. The mode of operation is clearly outlined by the picture. At A is shown the rim of the wheel, while the tire is shown at B. The pin, C, fits in the bolt hole, D, in the rim.

TOOL FOR MARKING STEEL TIRES.

The marking plunger is shown at E. In order to mark the center of the hole to be drilled in the tire, which is necessary to be in the same center as the bolt hole in rim, take a sledge or hammer and strike on the head, F, of the plunger, and it will be as shown by the dotted lines.

Removing Tight Cotter Pins.

The removal of cotter pins is generally considered to be an easy matter. There is always a chance to learn something new, however. A very good method of starting the pins is to grasp the open end in the jaws of the pliers, then tap on the points of the pliers with a hammer. This is a very effective method of getting a tight pin started. A drift pin or large nail can be pushed through the hole of the cotter pin and struck with a hammer. Occasionally a pin may be started by using the large nail as a lever.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHILDREN'S FAVORITES.

PEANUT FRUIT COOKIES.—To make these cookies one requires one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of light brown sugar, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half of a teaspoonful of nutmeg and cloves, a pinch of salt, one-half of a cupful of raisins chopped, and a cupful of chopped peanuts. First cream the butter, add the sugar and eggs, then add the flour, baking powder and spices sifted together. Lastly add the raisins and the nuts, (chill, roll, cut and bake in a brisk oven).

The With One Egg.—Take one egg, two cupfuls of sweet milk, one heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch and five tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the egg and mix with the other ingredients. Flavor with lemon or vanilla and bake in one crust.

Currant Pie. Two eggs, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of water, one cupful of mashed currants and two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar.

Fill a pie plate lined with sugar and the following mixture: Beat the egg yolks with the sugar and add the flour, water and currants, which have been washed, stemmed and mashed. Mix thoroughly and bake until done. When cool cover with a meringue made by beating the whites of the eggs very stiff, adding gradually with the egg beater the sugar. Put in a moderate oven for about eight minutes.

ONE-PIECE DRESS IN JACKET EFFECT.

Featured in this frock for Autumn. The jacket effect is a novelty for one-piece models.

There is no more effective way of combining simplicity and chic than in this one-piece frock made with jacket effect. The waist is made with an open neck, which is finished with a turn-down collar of contrasting material. Men's wear serge is both serviceable and pretty for the design, the narrow notched lapel making an effective trimming. Buttons of velvet, to correspond with the collar and sleeve trimmings, are also a stunning addition to the dress, which requires, for average size, 3½ yards 54-inch material, with ¼ yard contrasting silk or velvet for the collar, buttons, etc. The belt appears at the front and back of the dress, while the peplum extends only around the back and sides, being pleated at the back.

It requires rigid economy to cut the dress from the amount of material stipulated. After the serge is folded in half the first section of the pattern to be placed into position on the lengthwise fold is the back of the waist. Opposite to this, with the straight edge resting on the selvage, is the front gore. Next to the front gore is the front of the waist; then below the waist front, but on the lengthwise fold, the back skirt gore. The collar, pleated section of the peplum and belt are laid on a lengthwise fold, and above them rests the sleeve, on a lengthwise thread.

For the waist lining back and front there will be needed ¾ yard 36-inch material. This is folded first, after which the back is laid along the lengthwise fold, with the front on a lengthwise fold, just to the opposite, so that it touches the selvage.

In the place of velvet or satin, fur may be used for the collar. Fox furs of various kinds are in excellent standing, while beaver and gray kimmer are equally in demand.

What the one-fad fur of the season is to be, if there is to be one, no one can yet tell.

Braid, velvet and buttons applied decoratively upon men's wear serge are

THE PIONEERS

By MARJORIE CLOUGH

Singular it is that a little more than a century ago what we call the middle west, now teeming with millions of civilized beings engaged in commerce and manufacture, was a wilderness under process of conquest from the savage. Reading of the terrible dangers, the many butcheries of the settlers of that period, we are, wonder struck not only that men should go to such a region to live, but that they should take their wives and children with them.

In April, 1784, six families left Louisville, Ky., to make a new home farther down the Ohio on Green river. The method of travel was by the flatboat or the period. They used two of these boats, one for themselves, the other for the cattle. One night about 10 o'clock, when they were floating in the middle of the river, the blood-curdling Indian yell was heard several miles below, coming from the northern shore. Having floated a little farther down, they saw fires on the bank from which the yells proceeded.

A boat had passed the emigrants during the day, and they concluded that the Indians had captured it and were massacring its crew. The flatboat was designed to drift with the current, and there was no propelling power capable of forcing it upstream. The emigrants were therefore compelled to float on down and run the gantlet of the savages. A man named Rowan was in command of the boats, which were lashed together, and under his direction preparations were made for defense. The men of the party were seven, including himself.

The Indians being on what is now the Indiana shore, the boats were guided nearer the Kentucky shore, but the emigrants dared not approach too near, fearing there might be savages there too. The fires were extended along the shore, and the boats must pass them all to secure safety. Rowan directed that not a sound should be made, either of voice or oar, hoping that they might drift by unperceived.

They had reached a point midway on the line of fires when the Indians discovered them and ordered them to come to the shore. The whites continued their course and their silence. With a yell the savages rushed to their canoes and left the shore to intercept them. The latter floated on in silence, not even moving an oar to assist in their escape.

When the red men had approached to within a hundred yards of the floating boats the wife of the commander of the whites rose from her seat, collected the axes and placed one beside each man, who silently awaited till the Indians should come near enough to warrant giving them a volley. Mrs. Rowan, desiring to make sure that each man knew that an ax had been left beside him and not being permitted to speak, touched him as she deposited his weapon. The furnishing of these axes was designed to enable the men to repel the Indians in case they should attempt to board the boats.

With so many children present it was difficult to preserve peace, and each mother's duty was to see that none of her brood gave vent to terror. It has been recorded that no one except such as have heard the Indian yell can form any idea of the fear with which it inspires one. It is therefore to be wondered that the children, who heard the blood-curdling sounds, could be kept quiet.

A being used to inspire fear by noise would naturally be awed by silence. Whether it was this silence on the flatboats or the red men believed that their intended victims were waiting for their nearer approach to pour a volley into them after coming a certain distance, they ventured no nearer, keeping up their fiendish yells, brandishing their weapons and otherwise attempting to paralyze their intended victims by fear. Mrs. Rowan, who had reserved a hatchet for her own use in case the boat was boarded, remained seated like a statue, while every other mother watched her children to see that none of them broke the silence.

One can fancy the feelings of these emigrants, awed not only by the death that threatened them, but the scene about them. There were the dark waters, the still darker banks, the great dome above, while the whole was illumined by the lurid fires on the shore. But what was most terrifying were the hideous yells of the savages, who at ways used these means to paralyze those they wished to capture. The Ohio was called by the French La Belle Riviere (beautiful river), but this was the river of Hell.

For three miles the Indians followed the boats, then, awed by the impressive silence, drew off. More than a hundred savages had been kept at bay by seven men and three boys, for whom there were but nine guns. This result, achieved by a policy requiring nervous self control, a control that was largely assisted by the calmness of one woman, is notable. Rowan, who planned and directed the mute defense, must have been as remarkable for leadership as his wife for her part in the defense.

It was from such stock as this that many of our national magnates sprang. Presidents of the United States, eminent jurists and industrial kings are among their descendants. One child of these hardy pioneers stands pre-eminent. Abraham Lincoln was born to this very region just fifteen years after these emigrants awed the savage by silence.
